

Martin Luther King, Jr. At Communist Training School

The above caption and picture are appearing (Spring, 1965) on over 200 billboards throughout the South.

The above photograph, and two on the back of this page, were taken by Edwin Friend, 4888 Jett Rd., N.W., Atlanta 5, Georgia, then an employee of the State of Georgia, at the Highlander Folk School in Monteagle, Tennessee, during the Labor Day weekend of 1957. The photographer was sent to the Highlander Folk School by the Georgia Commission on Education. According to THE AUGUSTA COURIER of July 8, 1963, the Highlander Folk School was later abolished by an act of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee because it was charged with being a subversive organization.

1) Foreground, looking down, is Abner W. Berry of the Central Committee of the Communist Party.

2) First row, second from the right, is Martin Luther King Jr., of the Montgomery boycott, the Birmingham riots, and the so-called voting rights march from Selma to Montgomery, Alabama, in March, 1965. Karl Prussion, who served as a counter spy for the FBI for 22 years, charges that King belongs to, or has accepted support from 60 Communist-front organizations.

3) To King's right is Aubrey Williams, then president and now President Emeritus of the Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc., a Communist front organization known as the transmission belt in the South for the Communist Party.

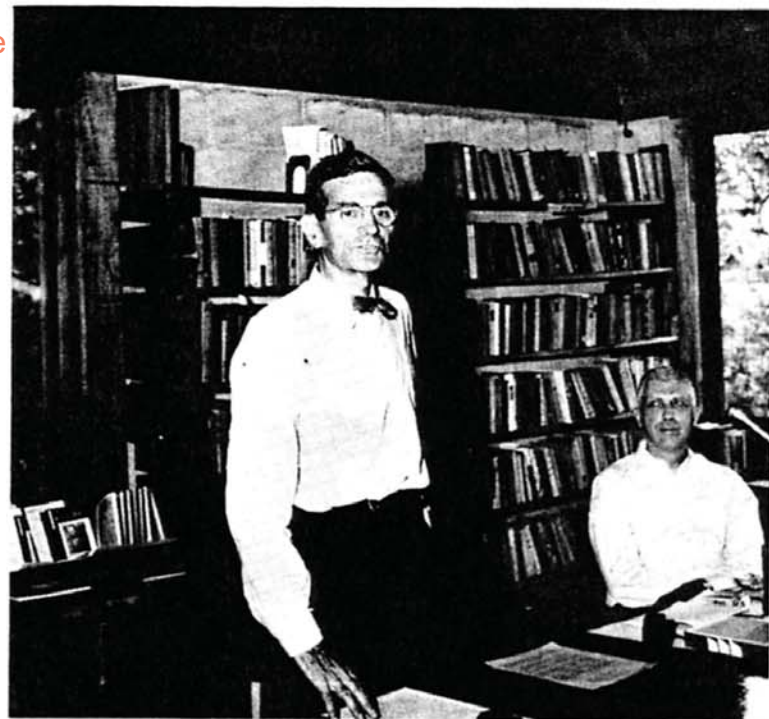

4) To Williams' right is Myles Horton, director of Highlander Folk School for Communist training Monteagle, Tennessee.

Since attending this 1957 Communist training school, these four leaders of racial agitation have brought tension, disturbance, strife and violence in their advancement of the Communist doctrine of "racial nationalism."

In the photograph above, left, Martin Luther King, Jr. is shown speaking at the Highlander Folk School. King claimed over a national television network on April 4, 1965, that he was only at the school for one and a half hours. Edwin Friend, who took these photographs, certifies that King arrived in the morning, attended the morning sessions, then spoke in the afternoon. The sun shining through the window to the rear of King in the above photograph, indicates that he was speaking at approximately 3:00 p.m. Hanging on the wall of the Highlander Folk School lecture hall was a copy of the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights, which denies all human rights.

Above, right, is Aubrey Williams, then president of the Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc., as he spoke at the Highlander Folk School. Seated is John B. Thompson, Chaplain of the University of Chicago, who was chairman of this 4-day Communist training seminar.

The photograph at bottom, right, furnished by the Joint Legislative Committee on Un-American Activities, State of Louisiana, is further proof of King's associations with known Communists. The picture was seized in a raid in 1963 on the New Orleans headquarters of the Southern Conference Education Fund Inc., which has been officially identified as a Communist front. Below the photograph is a reproduction of the notation appearing on the back of the original photograph which indicates that three identified Communists, Anne and Carl Braden and James E. Dombrowski were among the principal speakers, along with Martin Luther King, Jr., at the Sixth Annual Conference of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in Birmingham, Alabama, on September 25-28, 1962. The handwriting is that of James Dombrowski.

ALTHOUGH KING DENIES CONNECTIONS WITH COMMUNISTS, ALL THIS PHOTOGRAPHIC PROOF INDICATES THE OPPOSITE.
